Your paper entitled The Effect of Student Responses on Environmental Care Characters and Student Learning Outcomes is a progressive and very ambitious research study.

What do you mean by this phrase Environmental Care Character(s)? If you are suggesting a blend of Character building and environment care, why use the plural form. The studies included in the introduction hint at this phrase, so remove the plural 's' from the whole text. Secondly, the objective of the study is stated as "to determine the effect of student responses on the environmental care character of the inner tribe and students' understanding of concepts in thematic subjects on the environmental care character of elementary school students." It is clear that the author wishes the environmental education should start early from school days, but why the author delimits it to "inner tribe"? what does it refer to? If you are referring to the rural environment, it is suggested to use the right term, instead of one that is ambiguous.

There is no literature review that might have analyzed previous studies related to the topic and had helped the readers to understand the real state of the problems. You have mentioned a few studies in the introduction but they are not empirical or field studies. Secondly, the Introduction also lacks the rationale of conducting this research, as it lists only a few definition of character, environment care, etc.

It is therefore suggested that author should pay attention to the following specific things:

1. Abstract: please revise the findings and rewrite implications by making it clear what you want to say. What do you mean by this statement in your abstract that has no connection with the text: "Through this traditional game of marbles, students have a better understanding of the subject matter of mathematics. This is related to the interests and skills of students related to the tradition of the game." Please check as this statement does not belong to this study.
2. Your introduction does not have all the required components like background information, definitions of variables, problems statement, and a conceptual framework of this study. You can also highlight a lack of research, not much attention paid on the subject and how this research aimed to fill the research gap.
3. Literature review Please add this section to contain a few empirical studies as a rationale to support your objective. You may also state that there exists a research/ literature gap which shall be filled up with this study.

that there exists a research/ literature gap which shall be filled up with this study.

4. Results and Discussion: These are two separate sections. Results section contains the outcomes of all tests/ experiments, surveys, interviews, etc. some of which may be presented in tabular form. Discussion section must contain summary of main results and brief references to previous researches which agree or disagree with your findings.
5. Conclusion, Recommendations and Implications. Make it a separate section, to include a brief conclusion of the research completed, limitations, recommendations for future research and implications for research and practice.

Decision: Accepted after Revisions

Your paper has a wide range of information and findings but doesn't give the impression of a research in an educational context, as it fails to create a good impact on the readers nor motivates them to read more about the scale or the research problems/ arguments raised by you. This may be because your abstract contents do not match with the text of your paper. What do you mean by "traditional game of marbles" and "students have a better understanding of the subject matter of mathematics." This is not related to this paper.

The introduction part also lacks background information, and rationale of the research (which you give only a passing glimpse). The ambiguity is further created by talking about Environmental conservation and Environmental sanitation, without linking them with the subject of the study. This makes this paper less scholarly and academic. This is one of the elements that renders your good research work ineffective.

Moreover, the author has randomly mentioned a few studies in the introduction, but they need to be connected as a coherent literature review. It is suggested to add a few latest studies on the subject of research. Moreover, it is also required that the author defines the research setting (e.g., What is the population or sample derived from?). The author can also include a problem statement or a few research questions highlighting the objectives of this research e.g. lack of research, not much attention paid on the subject and how this research aimed to fill the research gap. The conclusion must contain limitations, recommendation for future research and implications for research and practice. A conclusion should summarize the findings and show how the study contributes to the domain of research. The paper, however, contributes new information. It may be 'accepted' after making changes, as suggested.
