ABSTRACT

This study aims to examine and analyze the influence of public service motivation on employee performance through organizational citizenship behavior. By using quantitative methods, data collection techniques used through observation, questionnaires and documentation, with a sample of 58 respondents. Hypothesis testing was carried out using the Structural Equation Model (SEM) technique with the smartPLS program. with the results of the Inner Model employee performance can be explained by the public service motivation construct of 78.1%, while the Organizational citizenship behavior model obtained was 0.629 which can be interpreted that the Organizational citizenship behavior construct can be explained by the public service motivation construct of 62.9%. The results of the study indicate that: 1) public service motivation has a positive and significant effect on employee performance, 2) public service motivation has a positive and significant effect on organizational citizenship behavior, 3) organizational citizenship behavior has a positive and significant effect on employee performance, 4) public service motivation has a positive and significant effect on employee performance with organizational citizenship behavior as an intervening variable. Suggestions on the Employee Performance variable, especially in the dimension of Efficiency in Carrying Out Duties, are still low, so it is recommended that a Performance Evaluation be held by Superiors and Colleagues, on the Public Service Motivation Variable, especially in the Commitment to the Public Interest dimension, it is recommended to focus on increasing public service motivation, on the Organizational variable Citizenship Behavior (OCB), especially in the politeness dimension, is still in the low category, so it is recommended to strengthen a work culture that promotes harmonious interpersonal relationships.
