The formulation of the problem in the study is How are the special protection arrangements for children victims of psychological violence in the Community Empowerment, Women, and Child Protection Service of Jambi City? And What is the form of legal protection for children victims of psychological violence in Jambi City? The research method used is a juridical-empirical approach with data collection techniques through literature studies and in-depth interviews. The results of the study indicate that the special protection arrangements for children victims of psychological violence are in accordance with Act Number 35 of 2014 concerning Child Protection, which is strengthened by regional policies. The forms of legal protection provided include: 1. Preventive Protection, such as awareness campaigns and education to the community to prevent psychological violence. 2. Repressive Protection, namely law enforcement against perpetrators of physical violence through criminal law processes in accordance with Article 76C and Article 80 of the Child Protection Law. However, the implementation of this legal protection still faces several obstacles, such as lack of human resources, limited budget, and low public awareness to report cases of psychological violence. Therefore, efforts are needed to increase the capacity of related institutions, cross-sector cooperation, and more intensive public education to ensure that protection for child victims of psychological violence can run effectively.
